

Sacred Cows of the US Tax Code

Over on the Wall Street Journal website Richard Rubin and Heather Seidel have put together a video explaining some sacred cows of the US tax code. They use actual cows and milk bottles of varying sizes. If you're having trouble sorting out tax rates, the tax base, and the relationship between the two, this will probably work for you. Warning: it may be behind a paywall. It's worth the effort just to see Mr. Rubin wear a cowboy hat.

Richard Rubin meets a sacred cow (click for largere image)